Program description with Scheduling Details:

The Post Graduate Department of Human Resource Management from M.O.P. Vaishnav College for Women organized a two-day capacity building workshop on “Contemporary Research Techniques in Social Science” on 29th and 30th November, 2017. The event was attended by 35 participants (research scholars and professors) from various colleges and universities. Experienced professors from Indian Institute of Technology – Madras (IIT-M), Great Lakes Institute of Management, Institute for Financial Management and Research (IFMR), Loyola Institute of Business Administration (LIBA), Pondicherry University and Presidency College shared their ideas, experience and knowledge to help, guide and provoke interest in research in social sciences. The workshop focused on topics such as Identification of research gaps and selection of research problems, online resources for research, review of literature, IBM SPSS software for statistical analysis and qualitative research methods.

Professor L.S. Ganesh from IIT, Madras initiated his session by informing quick alarming information about the current scenario of our country in terms of poverty, human development index, legal systems, unemployment, corruption, economy, farmer suicide rates, heavily skewed wealth distribution, and the need for social interventions to improve the country. He suggested only good research can help to solve these existential problems of our country. Thus, there is an ever-present need for research in the field of social sciences.

Dr. R. Venkatesakumar, Pondicherry University gave inputs on how to use online resources for conducting research surveys, generating citations, checking plagiarism, grammar check, data mining, online focus groups, etc. He also demonstrated how to use software for instant citation generation that saves time and prepares whichever citation format is required. Professor T.N. Swaminathan of Great Lakes Institute of Management stressed on the pain points of review of literature and pointed out that “plagiarism is an Intellectual fraud” He also explained the various sources of literature and showed snapshots of how to retrieve information from online websites to constitute the review of literature.

Dr. R. Ramanan from Presidency College facilitated the hands-on session on the use of SPSS by demonstrating the use of univariate, bivariate and multivariate data analysis using research data.

Professor Victor Louis Anthuvan from LIBA made a statement that “Research is the search for truth”. He elaborated on how research has been done since prehistoric times and how research findings always evolve and change dynamically. He suggested that good research should always answer who, where, why, when, what and how. He also elucidated on the common mistakes made while writing academic research papers and suggested ways to avoid it.

Professor C. Vijayalakshmi of IFMR enlightened the participants on qualitative research methods and their usage. She mentioned that a qualitative researcher must be good at awareness, sensitivity, empathy and values neutrality because the researcher is the tool in qualitative research. The two-day programme invoked interest in research in the minds of the students and provided the participants the vital insights for conducting research in Social Science.

AUDIENCE OF THE WORKSHOP
