PROGRAMME OBJECTIVES:

- To understand the fundamental concepts of quantum computing
- To introduce the fundamental concepts and tools used in quantum computing
- To compare and contrast the various use cases, future advantages of quantum computation in AI, Agriculture, Manufacturing and other industries

PROGRAMME BRIEF:

The Faculty Development Programme started off covering the important key and basic concepts of quantum computing. The introduction was followed by a session on Linear Algebra that covered the most important theorems required for quantum computing. Session on quantum gates covered the various gates used in quantum computation. The session also demonstrated how to use the IBM – Quantum lab and Qiskit – Open source software development kit for quantum computation.

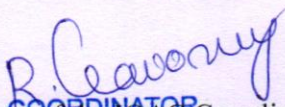

A session on quantum algorithms covered algorithms like Grover's search, Deutsch-Jozsa Algorithm, QAOA to name a few. Quantum use cases in machine learning, manufacturing, chemical and biology simulations, agriculture, and cryptography were discussed.

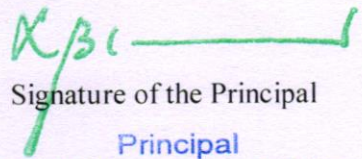

PROGRAMME OUTCOMES:

- The fundamental and background of quantum computing was introduced
- The various open source tools and techniques to manipulate quantum gates were demonstrated
- Use cases of quantum computing in various industries were covered.

REC

What is Intellectual Property?

- IP is protected in law by, for example, patents, copyright and trademarks, which enable people to earn recognition or financial benefit from what they invent or create.
- By striking the right balance between the interests of innovators and the wider public interest, the IP system aims to foster an environment in which creativity and innovation can flourish.
- IP is a form of "Tangible Property"
